

A Ceilidh Concert – Music, Song, Dance, and Poetry of Scotland

March 28, 2010, from 4 - 6 p.m.
at the Page-Walker Arts & History Center, Cary, NC

Native Scots will present a program of Scottish music, song, dance, and poetry from 4-6 p.m. on March 28, 2010, at the Page-Walker Arts & History Center, 119 Ambassador Loop, in downtown Cary, NC.

Celtic harp music performed by the local ladies' group, Harps Delight, will welcome you and set the mood for the afternoon.

Enjoy the beautiful voices of well-known local Scottish singers Julia Coble and Bill McCulloch, President of Capital Opera Raleigh, as they share songs of life, love, humor, and sadness.

Mara Shea, our local Scottish fiddler, will provide lively and lyrical tunes, with some insights into fiddle music in Scotland's culture. She will also be accompanying step-dancers and Scottish country dancers.

Michelle Coble, a recent graduate of Berklee College of Music, Boston, will perform some beautiful Scottish harp music to lift your mind to the Scottish highlands.

George Birrell, from Aberdeen, Scotland, will present some of the delightful words of Robert Burns, the famed Scottish poet, along with other poetry in the Doric dialect of Aberdeenshire.

The program will be introduced and woven together with humor by Master of Ceremonies, Donald Ross, another local Scot.

Please stay afterwards to enjoy Scottish delicacies, and to meet the musicians, dancers, and other performers.

Fee: $10, reservations available from www.townofcary.org, or from SCOT (Scottish Cultural Organization of the Triangle) with a discount for SCOT members. Space limited to 55 seats. Children over 7 years old welcome. For more information: Call 919-460-4963.
